

SELF-GUIDED tour

Ready to explore?

West Virginia University is where the best forge their futures. You will see that for yourself on your tour of WVU and Morgantown. So take your time. Look around. Ask people on campus what their experience has been like — don't worry, Mountaineers are famous for being friendly.

EVANSDALE

Big ideas take shape in Evansdale's labs, classrooms, studios and greenhouses. In Evansdale Crossing, the Hayhurst LaunchLab and Media Innovation Center cater to entrepreneurs and media pioneers.

There's plenty of room for fun and fitness at the Student Rec Center, playing fields and at intercollegiate athletic facilities like the WVU Coliseum.

Over 2,700 students call Evansdale home, with about 1,700 living in the four towers that comprise the Evansdale Residential Complex (Towers).

DOWNTOWN

Our University started here in 1867, so we're pretty sentimental about Downtown. It's home to the oldest buildings on campus — including iconic Woodburn Hall — as well as our largest library and the bustling Mountainlair Student Union.

Most of our undergraduates take introductory classes here, building a strong foundation in humanities and social and physical sciences.

About 3,300 students live in Downtown residence halls and apartments.

HEALTH SCIENCES

At Health Sciences, we have research labs, healthcare centers and training programs for every part of the human body and psyche.

This is where patients from around the state and region seek specialized care — and where tomorrow's health professionals evaluate their first patients and discover their calling.

Nearby Milan Puskar Stadium hosts 60,000+ fans for Mountaineer football, transforming the area into the state's third-largest city on game days.
